The Tropics – Not Always Paradise

The tropics are defined geographically by the Tropic of Cancer to the north and the Tropic of Capricorn to the south. Visions of this area typically conjure images of giant palm trees and warm, calm, crystal clear waters.

[Text Box] The rainy season in the tropics typically runs from October through March. Keep in mind that this area on the planet is one that receives abundant sunlight. The heat from the sun causes the rain to evaporate, which then rises, condenses and then falls as rain. As the season progresses, there is an increase in weather disturbances: Tropical Depressions, Tropical Storms, Cyclones and Hurricanes or Typhoons. The differences between the variable disturbances are typically categorized in this manner.
